

Tapping the innate talent

TANGADPELLI ROHAN PRADYUMNA IS ALL SET TO BECOME THE YOUNGEST AUTHOR IN THE COUNTRY

MANCHERIAL

At the age of barely 17, Tangadpelli Rohan Pradyumna is poised to publish two novels. He is aiming to break the record of Nikitha Singh, who created history by becoming the youngest author in the country and can pen poems in Telugu, English and Hindi languages. He operates a website for writers like him.

Pradyumna is the eldest son of Ajay Kumar, a government teacher and Kavita Renkuntla, a teacher and renowned psychologist of the town. He is pursuing engineering first year at Mahatma Gandhi Institute of Technology of Hyderabad. Apart from academics, he is trying to prove his mettle in literature. He has already authored a novel and is producing another one.

"My maiden work Vepor is a work of fiction. The complete story runs in the year 2357. It's somewhat related to Star Wars. The

MY MAIDEN WORK
VEPOR IS A WORK OF FICTION

— PRADYUMNA

second work's title is Yes I had a stroke. It is an emotional comedy drama, revolves around the life of Mr Murthy. The protagonist is a victim of rare disease, frontal lobe stroke," Rohan told Tabloid Today.

The versatile youngster informed, that he has not published any of the two novels so far. He, however, is determined to release the works as early as possible. "My goal is to become the youngest author by surpassing Nikitha Singh, who shot to fame with her maiden work, Love@Facebook when she was 19. I am confident of achieving the feat," he asserts.

When asked about his penchant for literature, the engineering student reasons that his mother had left a profound impact on him by engaging in writing. "My mother always creates some poetry or short tales or some articles. I was influenced by her during my childhood. She is my role model and a great source of inspiration," he shares with us.

You can visit his website at <http://articulateyourviews.wordpress.com>

"articulateyourviews.wordpress.com is a platform for budding writers, youngsters and students to share their thoughts on various issues. If you have a desire, dream, wish and anguish to publish your feelings which bound emotions in sentences then you are in the right place," Rohan informs about the portal.

— Santosh Padala

